Who was the primary audience for the service?

Stanislaus County Office of Education (SCOE) Healthy Start Support provides technical assistance in multiple ways to ten individual Healthy Start sites throughout the County.

What were the types of services provided?

SCOE manages a 10-site healthy start collaborative to provide effective services. Technical support is provided in the areas of budgeting, health services, outreach, education, sustainability, reporting, and operational issues. Monthly meetings are held to provide a forum for sharing information, resources, and best practices.

What was the intended result of the service? What was the community impact of the service?

SCOE Healthy Start - Its goal is to strengthen families by improving and integrating systems of care to enhance the well being of the child. Therefore, the intended result of the Healthy Start Support program is to facilitate reaching the goal is by providing support services, including training and marketing. As a result, the sites have been providing community support in a more effective and coordinated manner.

Provide a description of the evaluation activities completed during the fiscal year

The Stanislaus County Children and Families Commission (CFC) views evaluation as both a process and a tool. The process of evaluation is fluid and occurs throughout the fiscal year, encompassing multiple methods and activities. As a tool, the evaluation informs stakeholders and assists in future funding or scope of work revisions. The primary focus of the evaluation is promoting a learning environment. Learning occurs when the following types of evaluation information are shared: effective and ineffective practices; impacts on children, families, and communities; costs and benefits of programs; and the contributions of programs towards achieving population results expressed in the CFC Strategic Plan. The Strategic Plan is the foundation of any given fiscal year's evaluation cycle, as it communicates the Commission's goals, objectives, and strategies. The evaluation activities begin as each funded program addresses the Strategic Plan through its activities and planned outcomes, which are identified in the Scope of Work (SOW) that is developed at the start of the fiscal year. The SOW becomes the basis for each program's SCOARRS (Stanislaus County Outcomes and Results Reporting Scorecard), which is designed to document services performed, resources used, data collected and outcomes expected. Both documents are constructed jointly between CFC staff and program staff, and each draws on the unique capacity of the programs to contribute to the Commission's goals and objectives. Both documents serve as blueprints that enable programs and the Commission to mutually understand how resources will turn into results.

Quantitative and qualitative data are collected through each individual program's SCOARRS, which provides a structured framework for tracking and reporting data and outcomes. SCOARRS are submitted quarterly by all programs and contribute to the effective monitoring of each program on a quarterly basis. SCOARRS data also supply programs with information to learn what is working well and what improvements can be made throughout the fiscal year, and allows programs to explain and/or revise practices.

The Commission and programs continuously evaluate programs throughout the annual evaluation cycle, using both qualitative and quantitative methods of collecting, analyzing, and reporting data. A variety of tools provide the programs and the Commission with program data, including the following: pre/post tests, customer/employee satisfaction surveys, observations, intake forms, and screenings. Programs capture output and outcome data through SCOARRS and demographic information through a Demographic Data Collection Tool which took the place of PEDS. Commission staff then reviews all the information and reports submitted, along with budgets, invoices, and site visits to evaluate individual program effectiveness, as well as overall aggregate progress toward Commission goals and objectives.

Efforts to evaluate leveraging and collaboration efforts have continued through a collaboration matrix tool used since 2009-2010. Results have been shared and opportunities to increase collaboration efforts have been supported. Leveraging is part of many programs' sustainability plans and have been measured and supported.

The policy impact of the evaluation results will not be fully utilized until the program evaluation report for 2012-2013 is completed. The evaluation results are one of multiple tools to be used by the Commission to make program funding decisions for the 2014-2015 fiscal year.

Despite the fact that the evaluation results are not yet finalized, the evaluation process was used throughout the year to make policy decisions on multiple levels. Funded programs receive evaluation feedback throughout the year as part of the evaluation cycle feedback loop. The SCOARRS, annual report, and site visit reports serve as tools to identify what is working well and where challenges remain. Through this process, program take action to revise methods or services.

The Commission receives evaluation updates in several forms: Annual Report submission, an annual program evaluation, and the state annual report. These reports provide the Commission with information that can be used to make decisions regarding short and long-term budgeting, making recommendations on programs, and revising and updating its Strategic Plan. Evaluation information continues to influence decision regarding the prioritization of services and the allocation of diminishing resources.

The dissemination of evaluation results to a multitude of stakeholders is essential to increase awareness of how Prop 10 funding is accounted for and to impact local and state policy. Through the "Report to the Community" the Commission relays results of the work being done with local Prop 10 funding. In 2013, the report will be disseminated to more than 241,000 stakeholders. The report will provide information through stories, demographic information, and highlights of services delivered. As the information reaches the community, local policy and advocacy efforts can be influenced (e.g., buy-in from local businesses or governments). A presentation, based on the "Report to the Community", is presented annually to the Board of Supervisors in October/November, creating additional awareness and support at the County policy level.
